Roof Coatings

The coatings landscape today is crowded, with many options available, and each option offering different strengths. Choosing the correct coating type can save time, labor and money throughout the life of the building. These coatings can be used to maintain and extend the life of an existing roofing system or be used with spray polyurethane foam (SPF) to create a complete roofing system.

Additionally, building owners appreciate the fact Gaco manufactures, inspects and warrants our coatings and roofing systems, which translates to a streamlined and higher quality install.

And, with over 220 million warranted square feet sold, you can trust Gaco to protect your investment. We provide 10, 15, and 20 year manufacturer limited* NDL warranties.

Gaco Urethane Coatings

Taking Durability To New Heights

If durability and impact resistance is of upmost importance, urethane coatings are the solution for you. Urethane is ideal for protection against severe weather such as hail, moisture intrusion, and roof traffic. They also offer high chemical resistance. Available in two product types, aliphatic and aromatic, these products are typically used in combination to form a basecoat and topcoat mixing the durability of an aromatic product with the reflectivity performance of an aliphatic material. Additionally, a urethane roof coating with an aromatic base and an aliphatic top coat stays cleaner and holds color better than other coating solutions.

Gaco Silicone Coatings

The First Line Of Defense Against The Elements

If providing a superior weather barrier is a priority, silicone coatings are your solution. Silicones are solvent-free, highly flexible, provide resistance to ponding water and have excellent UV stability. Additionally, silicone coatings can be applied to most substrates without the use of a primer. With a high solids content, they often require less material, saving time and labor. Silicones are also used in high-moisture climates due to their fast-drying characteristics.

Gaco Acrylic Coatings

Add More Life To Your Roof

Need to add life to your roof quickly while transitioning to a reflective surface? Acrylic coating is your solution. Acrylic provides excellent resistance to ultraviolet (UV) radiation and is inherently flexible to withstand a roof's instability. Being water based, Gaco Acrylic Coatings are extremely easy to handle and apply. There is no component mixing and cleaning is simple with just soap and water. Acrylic excels in high heat, low humidity environments with minimal rainfall and where ponding water is not a concern.
